WHEN A BROILER IS A CHICKEN IN MARION

Lots of People Can't Tell 'Em from Bantam.

A broiler may be a broiler and yet again it may be a chicken. It's like this.

Some farmers around Marion are raising hundreds of bantam hens. They're easy to raise, hardy little birds, eat less than a regular hen, grow more rapidly and the meat is as finely flavored.

When dressed and on the market—they're spring broilers. Back home on the farm they're chickens, their habit at deciding the age and status of the birds.

There's a fancier profit in the smaller birds and city people aren't so shrewd as they pretend to be.

ALL ITALY IS IN MOURNING

Loss of Enrico Caruso Deeply Felt by People.

ALL STORES IN NAPLES ARE CLOSED TODAY

Crowds, Bareheaded and Reverent Pass Before Hotel Where Remains Repose.

Naples, August 3—All Italy today, mourned the Enrico Caruso Arrangements are being made for a funeral of unexampled proportions All the stores in Naples are closed Crowds, bareheaded and reverent passed before the hotel in the room where the great singer died yesterday morning The body will lie in state on the stage of the San Carlo theater before interment

The death of the tenor has cast a pall over the entire city Orders for flowers come from all parts of the world

Caruso's will is said to disclose an estate of $9,000,000 to $10,000,000 in value

It is also said that Caruso recently went on a pilgrimage to the shrine of the Madonna at Pompeii, where he donated $1,000 lire as a thanksoffering for his recovery from illness About the same time, King Victor Emmanuel sent an aide de camp to Caruso's villa to express his best wishes over the apparent recovery from illness

It was not until after Caruso's death that the specialists who had been attending him announced that kidney disease was really the cause of death The singer was in great pain during his last hours, but bore himself stoically His sufferings were so intense that his wife and brother could not bear to remain in the sick chamber and left it at frequent intervals to compose themselves

Signor de Luca, a close friend of Caruso who had spent nearly the whole of Monday night at the bedside, said he had never seen such agony as the singer endured

Intimates of Caruso said that up to a week before his death the tenor was most optimistic over his recovery, although at times he seemed to brood and it is believed now that he felt a presentiment of serious illness which he did not reveal even to members of his family.

Caruso was not a perfect medical patient. His doctor had put him on a diet, but the singer continually disregarded it and ate heavy dishes that were forbidden. Caruso was always a hearty eater and chafed under the restraints which the physician had imposed on him

Caruso's last words were said to have been spoken to his son Monday night, the singer called his son to the bedside and said to him.

"My son, it is finished. I go."

The funeral service probably will be held in the church of St. Ferdinand and prominent personages are hurrying to Rome from all parts of Europe to attend. Among the cablegrams received were messages from King George of England and President Millerand of France

A death mask has been made and will be sent to America

A requiem mass for the repose of Caruso's soul, was conducted this morning in the cathedral The edifice was filled to overflowing and friends of the dead singer wept at intervals during the service.

New York Comment.

New York, August 3.—New York morning papers commented, editorially, today on the death of Enrico Caruso

Arthur Brisbane, in the American, says, "It was Caruso's spirit, directing the force of his powerful body, acting upon his vocal cords that produced songs that can now live forever"

The Tribune says "The world shines, today, on a world impoverished to no small degree by the passing of this son of Italy"

The World says "The sense of loss in Caruso's death — inspite, will be as far reaching as his fame, that is to say it will be universal."

The Herald says "It was not all together because of his voice beautiful though it was, that Enrico Caruso was the greatest tenor of his day, one of the greatest singers of modern times It's genius is and more to do with it"

The Times says "The place of Enrico Caruso in the hearts of the world is a thing apart No person in all time to come will be to the people"

Touching Tribute.

London, August 3—The London press today published touching tributes to the late Enrico Caruso

"A man and a singer for the hearts of humanity," said the Daily Mail, "Italy has the greatest tenor of our time and it can be said that a perfect voice is one of the rarest gifts of nature"

"Caruso was a wonder, a miracle" said the Chronicle. All people mourn a genius"

Rome Mourns.

Rome, August 3—Flags were displayed at half mast throughout the city today as a mourning for the death of Enrico Caruso Italy's foremost operatic virtuoso Practically every house in the country displayed a flag at half mast or was decorated in crepe The newspapers unanimously paid tribute to the memory of the great singer They spoke of Caruso's generous and lovable character" and declared that Caruso honored Italy abroad, not only as an unparalleled singer, but also as a fine representative of the Italian race

"This was especially so in the United States, Caruso's second fatherland" said one newspaper "He did more for Italian-American friendship than consulates and diplomatists"

Flags to Half.

Cincinnati, August 3—The Times-Star editorially says "Caruso dead! The great voice hushed the world's singing mad dirge over one of the greatest singers of all time

"There is no immortality about this Neapolitan, whose notes become golden in compensation And strange to say Caruso's is a story of gradual success He did not suddenly astound the world with his voice

Caruso is the first superlative singer to pass on in the days of the phonograph. The possibility of his voice marching on through the years and reverberating through multitudinous homes long after his death had become almost a commonplace"

World Is Poorer.

Cleveland, August 3—Editorial tribute was paid to Caruso by the press here

The Cleveland News, today said. "Caruso as a man was much as other men are As a singer he was without a peer. No other voice compared to his when judged by most searching critics none other belonged to the whole world"

The Plain Dealer said: "Perhaps Caruso was the greatest singer the world has ever heard * * * the earth is made distinctly poorer by the death of this wonderful man A magically uplifting power is gone"

"Very few singers of his—(Caruso's)—class have had so long a period of prominence in lyric drama and perhaps none have held a supreme place so long without having the throne challenged by successful pretenders,' reads an editorial in the Columbus Evening Dispatch, today.

'The lesson for this to all singers with ambition for a public career is that Caruso won his place not only by gifts of nature, but also by unremitting toil

"The sorrow of passing is tempered by the fadeless beauty which he left as a heritage to the world"

"The world of music lost it's brightest star in the death of Enrico Caruso,' says the Ohio State Journal editorially

"He was the great tenor with whom others to come will be compared"

French Tribute.

Paris, August 3—The French press, today, paid high tribute to the memory of Enrico Caruso

"Caruso is dead, but thank God his voice remains imprisoned forever in wax,' said the Echo de Paris

"The power of Caruso's voice was without limit, which made up for any technical insufficiency," said the Journal.

'Since the death of Tamagno, Caruso has been the world's foremost operatic figure," said L'Oeuvre

'The tradegy of Caruso's death was nothing to the recent tragedy when he knew that he would never sing again," said LeGaulois.

HOUSE PASSES THE SWEET BILL

Provides for Aid for Veterans of World War.

MEASURE READY FOR THE PRESIDENT

Relief Bill Approves Expenditure of $480,000,000 for Disabled Veterans.

Washington, August 3—Congress yesterday, paved its final stamp of approval on the soldiers' relief bill, providing for the expenditure of $490,000,000 for disabled veterans, or $20,000,000 more than the appropriation for the late fiscal year

By a vote of 264 to four the house of representatives adopted the conference report on the Sweet bill for a consolidation of governmental activities on behalf of soldiers, sailors and marines, who served in the World war into a new organization, the veterans' bureau, which will be responsible to the president alone.

The senate having voted unanimously yesterday for the adoption of the same report, the two houses have been brought into complete agreement on the legislation, and the perfected bill is ready for the signature of President Harding

Because the chief executive committed himself to the principles of the measure even before it was introduced in this congress, his approval is taken as a foregone conclusion, and it is expected the bill will become a law within the next few days.

The four votes cast against the adoption of the conference report in the house today were recorded by Representatives Thomas Blanton, Texas; Walter F. Lineberger, California; Hamilton Fish, New York; and B. L. Rosenbloom, West Virginia.

Amendment Stricken Out.

Mr. Fish, who is a veteran of the World war, introduced an amendment which was agreed to by the house but stricken out by the senate. It provided for the appropriation of $50 a month for an attendant in the case of each soldier who is totally blind. The law now allows $20 a month for such an attendant

Representative Blanton sought to have the bill recommitted because the provision for a $50 a month attendant had been eliminated in conference, but only a handful of representatives favored that course Representative Miner G Norton, of Cleveland was one of the number.

Debate which preceded the adoption of the conference report in the house today brought from Representative Burton Sweet, of Iowa, father of the legislation, the statement that under the provisions of the legislation the government will spend $450,000,000 annually in caring for the sick and disabled of the world war.

"How much of that," asked Representative Joseph G Cannon, of Illinois, "will go to the soldier and how much of it will go to administration?"

"About $13,000,000 will be spent on administration, the rest will go to the soldiers," replied Mr Sweet

'How much was spent last year on the care of these veterans of the World war under the provisions of the present law?' asked Representative Frank Mondell, of Wyoming Republican floor leader.

"About $460,000,000," answered Mr Sweet "This will provide for the payment of about $20,000,000 more to the soldiers"

Owing to the fact that more than half of the mail that senators and congressmen are receiving relates to misunderstandings over the provisions of the Sweet bill, Senator David I Walsh, of Massachusetts who had charge of the legislation in the senate, has compiled a comparison on the present law with the new act which now lacks only the signature of the president to become effective

'There are ten important changes in the present law covering hospitalizing of incapacitated ex-service men, which will be made by this legislation," said Mr Walsh

"1—Under the present law, the administration of the government insurance and all compensation claims is performed by the bureau of war risk insurance, the hospitalization medical care and treatment [illegible] United States public health service the vocational training of [illegible] soldiers by the federal board [illegible] national education.

'The Sweet bill consolidates and centralizes these bureaus by creating independent organization, under which they merge to be known as the veterans' bureau The bill places the bureau under the jurisdiction of the president

"2—The present law limits the medical care and treatment of incapacitated veterans to those suffering with a service connected disease or injury of ten per cent or more. The present bill extends medical care and treatment to all service men suffering with disease or injury of service or six of less than ten per cent Many dental, eye ear, nose and throat cases where the disability [illegible] ten per cent may now be [illegible]

"3—The rate and amount of compensation now paid by existing law is the same as allowed by the Sweet bill The law remains the same in providing total compensation was $80 a month and compensation rates for the [illegible] is at $57 per month

"4—The [illegible] of insurance to war risk insurance are increased by the bill in three important respects Men suffering with disability of service could may reinstate the lapsed insurance by payment of all back premiums, provided they are not permanently and totally disabled Under the present law no insurance is in as good physical condition at the time of the reinstatement as at the time the policy lapsed

Many Veterans Benefit.

"This will include a thousands of men being denied insurance The same opportunity to reinstate lapsed insurance policies is extended to people of other wards of war be demonstrated that the death of the ex-service man was due to wounds or disease contracted in the service

"Another section makes all insurance policies of the government incontestable after six months, from date of reinstatement. Still another provision is that premiums may be waived and insurance may not be deemed to have lapsed in case of persons confined in hospitals of those rated permanently and totally disabled This prevents the lapse of any policy where a veteran is in the hospital and short of funds.

"5—There is no change in the new legislation affecting the vocational training [illegible] disabled service men

"6—Under the present law no compensation can be claimed or paid unless death or disability occurred prior to or within one year after discharge or reinstatement from the service The new law extends the time for filing claims to within one year after the passage of this amendatory act Technically under existing law, all tuberculosis and neuro-psychiatric diseases which did not emerge and become active within one year after date of discharge were debarred from compensation

"7—Authority is vested in the veterans' bureau to review on its own motion any award of compensation and diminish or increase the degree of compensation previously granted It also permits the rating and granting of compensation from the date the disability began

"8—Another amendment further extends the benefits of the present law by relieving applicants for compensation, who are suffering with tubercular and neuro-psychiatric diseases developed within two years, from the necessity of proving that said diseases were contracted in the line of service. This will settle 15,000 pending claims, awaiting proof that the applicant's tuberculosis or mental disease was contracted in the service.

"9—Heretofore no law has provided for the punishment of those who make false statements with intent to defraud the government in seeking the benefits of hospitalization compensation and insurance. Punishment is provided for fraud under this legislation

"10—Provision is made for punishment of breach of discipline on the part of patients. Those who violate the rules may be punished to the extent of having some of their compensation forfeited, but in case that punishment is resorted to by the superintendent of a government institution, the right of appeal to a board composed of disinterested persons is given."

INTERNAL REVENUE BUREAU CLEANING

May Follow Filing of Charges in Hands of Commissioner.

Washington, August 3—A thorough investigation and if necessary, a "thorough housecleaning" will be made of the bureau of internal revenue, as a result of grave charges that much highly-confidential information concerning income tax reports and other matters has been getting into unauthorized hands, it was announced today by Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair.

"Any circumstance or fact that will tend to support a charge that income tax cases or other matters handled by the bureau are not disposed of according to the law and regulations, is proper subject for the most sweeping investigation

"After a cursory investigation, myself, I decided that a thorough probe is necessary and have directed the hearings be heard," said Blair.

I have issued instructions that the investigation shall be full and impartial, as I want to get the exact facts regardless of consequences," he concluded.

BRYCE TALKS OF WAR SEEDS

Sown by Treaties of Conferees in Paris.

EUROPEANS ARE HEAPING CENSURE

Condemn Work of Diplomats, According to Viscount in Talk at Williams College.

Williamstown, Mass, August 3—"The seeds of future wars have been sown in Europe by the deliberations and treaties of the Versailles conference," Viscount James Bryce yesterday, told the Institute of Politics at Williams college, in his second lecture on "International Relations of the Old World States."

Discussing the framing of treaties by the representatives of the victorious powers he said'

'Their work has received in Europe nothing but censure. Comparing the treaties they framed with those which were made by the congress at Vienna in 1814-15 European critics observe that the men of Vienna, Alexander and Metternich Talleyrand and Hardenberg and Castlereagh may have had bad principles and employed despotic methods and misconceived the interests of their peoples, but they at least knew what they were doing, and gave effect to their principles

"Head Straight to Wars."

"Their work bestowed upon Europe a tolerable peace which lasted for more than thirty years But there is no one of the treaties of 1919-20 which is not now already admitted to need amendment while some are seen to lead straight to future wars.

"One hears people say 'the sort of peace that these negotiations have given to us is as bad as was the war' The negotiations at Paris differed in their principles and ideals, and some, at least, of them do not seem to have believed in the principles they professed.

"European cities have suggested that some of them may have thought they must play down to their own electorates and regard not what ought to be done, but what would help in their next electoral campaigns Popular prejudices popular passions and cupidities had to be humored or gratified.

"Moreover, and this is an excuse which must not be lightly brushed aside, the task before them was one of unprecedented difficulty New states had to be established, territories redistributed, indemnities obtained, and all on a scale incomparably greater than any international congress ever before had attempted"

European Hatreds Cited.

"This war has shown one unprecedented feature, painful on the prospect it opens. The victors bear as much resentment against the vanquished as the vanquished do against the victors. There is no blacker cloud, pregnant with future storm, hanging over Europe now than that which blackens the banks of the Rhine. Not even after Jena in 1806, not even after Gravelotte, and Sedan and the capitulation of Paris in 1871, has the prospect of reconciliation between two neighboring peoples seemed so distant."

Turning to Russia, Lord Bryce said

"If the experience of states which have in past times lapsed into anarchy or fallen under the domination of groups of adventurers ruling be mere force, without a shred of constitutional or moral authority, were to furnish any ground for a forecast, we should expect the rise of some military despotism like that of Bonaparte.

"But whence or when will the deliverer appear? Three attempts have been made and have failed Whoever re-establishes order will find a country from which most of its best men have been removed, some by starvation, many by murder others by exile, so his task will be all the more difficult.

"But it must be remembered that Russia herself, once her internal troubles have subsided and she is again a military power, probably will endeavor to reconquer all the territories which she recently has lost, except, perhaps, Poland and Finland.

"The Russian exiles, survivors from the old regime who have escaped into Western Europe, make no secret of their desire to recover the Baltic lands, which had been largely Russified before 1917, and even the territories beyond the Caucasus in which the native races had been only superficially affected by Tsarist rule."

Police Chief J. W. Thompson and John K Peters returned from Cleveland, Tuesday night with a Buick touring car which was stolen some time ago at Youngstown. The machine was insured in the Drivers' Mutual company and the claim was paid The machine was recovered in Cleveland about six weeks ago and the two men in charge of it were returned to Akron on some charge and nothing could be learned of them.

The catch-as-can can-can is to be officially rounded out

All those vulgar easy dances that anyone with two legs, or maybe a stout crutch could do at sight, are to be banned and tabooed the coming winter

There has been a slump in the dancing-teaching business many admitted today The dances were getting so simple that people were drawn right up out of their seats by the wail of the saxaphone and before they knew it were out in the middle of the floor, "toddling" away without having taken any lessons at all

Moreover, "standardization" that keyword of the dancing-teaching industry was tossed to the four notes of the piccolo. Everyone's "toodle" was his own and it was just as good as any one else

Miss Nace Morford, who is here from East St Louis, suggests that a "waltz" may be among the latest crazes

Other delegates from among the dancing teachers of the country here at the Hotel Astor include Thomas McDougall, H M. Robb and Jack Bowman, of Pittsburgh; Misses M E. McDonald and E. Schultz, of Chicago Lewis Kreelow who brought his venerable white beard and agile underpinnings to his fortieth or "mayne fifieth" annual convention has seen dances come and go since the polka was the height of improper jazz. Lewis is a lot more tolerant of popular dances than many of the other teachers.

Sometimes a man's idea of chivalry is to protect a woman against every man except himself.

COMMISSION GETS FIGURES

Touching High Cost of Road Building Materials.

WITESSES HEARD IN COLUMBUS TODAY

Railroad Freight Rates Boosted Forty Per Cent. During the Past Year.

Columbus, August 3.—Alleged excessive rates on sand, gravel and crushed-stone shipments in Ohio again were discussed at today's session of the state utilities commission's probe into the railroad freight rate situation

Taking the witness stand, F. X. Krug, Jr., employed in the state highway department, expressed belief that the department will have to suspend road building operations or use cheaper road building materials, if prevailing freight rates are not reduced.

Krug declared that the general protest from taxpayers throughout the state is that roads are not worth their present cost of construction. He submitted figures in support of his claim that railroad freight rates constitute fourteen per cent of the cost involved in carrying out the state highway department's $26,500,000 road-building program, or about $3,500,000

C. W. Furey, Cleveland, representing the A. Bentley & Sons Construction company, presented statistics purporting to prove that the cost of road-building materials declined about fifteen per cent during the past year, while railroad freight rates on these materials were boosted forty per cent.

George J. Bolender traffic manager for the Kalamazoo, Michigan, chamber of commerce, and the Ohio highway department's chief witness, completed his testimony. Most of his time on the stand, today, was devoted to cross-examination. His testimony consisted of a discussion of comparative prices of road-building materials in 1918-21.

WOULD WIDEN MARION AND MARYSVILLE ROAD

Which Leads to the Marion County Club's Links.

STEPS TAKEN TO ADD TEN FEET TO ROADWAY

Six of the Score or More of Land Owners Sign Deeds for Improvement.

Steps which are expected to result in the widening of the improved section of the Marion-Marysville road from the corporate limits of Marion south to the Hocking Valley tracks were taken at a conference of approximately half of the land owners along that strip with the county commissioners, prosecuting attorney and county surveyor Tuesday evening in the office of the county commissioners.

Six land owners at the meeting signed tentative deeds for strips of land five feet wide along the road. The price agreed upon for this land was one dollar a rod, the agreement providing that the property-owner move the fence back.

Communication Received.

Recently the county commissioners received a communication from the state highway department announcing that state-aid roads in the county must be widened in order to provide ample space for ditching and other work at the side of the pavements. The state department suggested that the road be made sixty feet wide by securing a strip of land ten feet wide on each side.

A majority of the land owners at the meeting Tuesday night expressed the opinion that a strip five feet wide on each side would be sufficient for all purposes and also stated they could dispose of that size strip to the state with a minimum of damage to their fences and improvements.

Fred W. Warner, prosecuting attorney, had a number of deeds prepared for the transfer of the land and the six signed these instruments. It is the intention to interview the remaining property owners, about fifteen, within a short time and secure deeds for the remainder of the land to make the road fifty feet wide. The road is now forty feet wide.

Construction of a sheet-asphalt pavement on this road has just been completed and the road was opened to traffic Tuesday morning. The road leads to the grounds of the Marion Country club.

BARGAINS FOR GROCERY, GROCER CASHES CHECK

Which Is Returned to Him Marked "No Funds."

BAD CHECK IS DRAWN ON BANK IN TOLEDO

Of Course, the Stranger While Here Happens To "Run a Little Short."

A new racket to gain confidence in order to pass a worthless check was worked on a local grocer, July 13, and came to light when the check came back to him this week. It has also developed that the fellow has worked the same game in a number of Ohio cities.

The man came to Marion and consulted the grocer relative to buying him out. The grocer offered to sell and was instructed to fix the price. After a hasty invoice he fixed the price to the man the following day, July 13.

The terms were satisfactory to the man, who gave his name as Murray Cox. The man explained that he would be back in two days to pay the money and close the deal. Then he informed the grocer that he ran a little short of money and asked if he could cash his check for $25.

The grocer cashed the check, which was on the Spitzer-Rorick Bank & Trust company, of Toledo. This was the last he saw of the alleged Murray Cox. While he had several days ago concluded that the sale of the store was off, he was more shocked when he learned of his financial loss.

PLAYERS AND GAMBLERS FREE

never play with the White Sox again. Whether the White Sox will have prior claim on the players, should they be reinstated, or whether they will be free agents whom any magnate may deal with, is a point of baseball law that Judge Landis will be called upon to decide. Should the players be exonerated by Judge Landis and held to be free agents, it is expected that bidding among the magnates for their services will not be entirely dispirited. Such players as Weaver, Williams, Risberg, Jackson and Felsch would look mighty sweet in the lineup of half a dozen clubs in both the major leagues.

"Buck" Weaver, so far, is the only player to announce that he will fight to get back in organized ball. "Buck" confidently expects to be working under "Kid" Gleason again in a few days.

Scaring the End.

Eddie Cicotte, who admits thirty-seven years and is probably about to the end of his baseball career, announced that he would return to his home in Detroit, but did not say what his plans were. Gandil declared he expected to get hold of some good club and manage it. Williams said he would play semi-professional ball and Joe Jackson asserted he was through with organized ball. He said he would remain in Chicago, operate his billiard hall, play a little "sand lot" ball and intimated that he had received an offer or two to shine before the footlights.

They Are Joyful.

Felsch and Risberg expressed their joy at the outcome of the trial, but did not state what their plans for the future were.

The verdict of the jury, it is believed today, resulted chiefly from a point in Judge Friend's instructions. Judge Friend instructed the jury that in cases where conspiracy to defraud the public and the baseball owners is charged, it is up to the state to prove that acts were done by the players with specific intent to defraud.

Indictment of the players and alleged gamblers followed an investigation that began immediately after the 1919 World's series when rumors that the games had not been decided "on the level" became current. The climax of the probe came in September, 1920, when a grand jury was convened and after a few days, indictments were returned.

Eddie Cicotte, Joe Jackson and Claude Williams made confessions before the grand jury, but later repudiated these confessions.

Bill Burns, a former major league pitcher and William Maharg of Philadelphia, turned state's evidence and were granted immunity.

The original indictments accused Abe Attell, former feather-weight boxing champion, Hal. Chase, once the prince of major-league first-basemen and Fred McMullin, utility infielder of the White Sox. Attell and Chase defeated extradition proceedings in New York and California and McMullin never was apprehended.

New Lens Law

All motor vehicles must have state-approved headlights

Here is the new law Ohio motor car owners must comply with:

"No headlights shall be used on any motor vehicle upon the highways except after the installation of a device to prevent glare, which device has been certified and approved by the state highway commissioner." (Amended Senate Bill No. 156, approved by Governor Davis.)

You are liable to fine for violation

This law provides fines up to $100. Protect yourself by having Macbeth or Liberty lenses put on your headlights now. Then you take no chance of detention, arrest or fine.

Macbeth and Liberty lenses are approved by the Ohio state highway commissioner, and are lawful in all states. They prevent glare without dimming your headlights.

The best way to conduct the coming big conference in Washington is to make it reminditul of that of Paris by making it as different as possible.

The nickel loaf of bread has returned to Toledo, but it's just possible that it has dwindled to such an extent that the Toledoans will experience difficulty in recognizing it.

Apropos of respect for the flag, we can hardly expect the other fellow to show it unless we ourselves make evident our esteem for it.

From the length of Senator France's inspection of what was once the great Muscovite empire, we take it that the major portion of the senator's inspection was on the absent-treatment plan.

The practice seems to be to put on extra speed in school zones and when a school zone and a "quiet" zone overlap, the auto driver who wants to show his contempt for other people's rights naturally opens up his muffler.

The prisoner in a Chicago prison who went on a hunger strike and died of starvation probably has put the hunger strike out of fashion up in the Windy City.

If we get the idea correctly, the coming conference is to bring about the limitation of armaments and settle certain Far Eastern matters, and not to reform the world, man and the devil as some people appear to imagine.

Twenty-five million people are starving to death in Russia, and Trotzky is planning to wage war on Poland. If the Russians have the means to wage war, they certainly have the means to feed themselves.

President Hefnisch, of Austria, says the Central powers would have won the war had they been under prohibition. And talk like this when we are being urged to permit the manufacture of "medicinal" beer to make men strong!

The story that Toronto landlords are charging prospective tenants two dollars for simply looking at their apartments is probably all rot. What they are probably doing is pro-rating the monthly rent to the time of the inspection.

"It has always struck me as rather odd," remarked the fellow who lives next door on the way down town this morning, "that so many of these efficiency experts who tell other people how to achieve business success never achieved success in running a business of their own."

Throughout the campaign the New York Times worried for fear the senate, in the event of Republican success, would run the White House, and now, if it is sincere, it's greatest worry is that the White House will run the senate.

Statistics compiled by the Southern railway show that 10,264 cars of peaches have been shipped out of Georgia this year as against 5,663 cars, and it is expected that 300 cars more will be shipped. The "killing frosts" which "destroyed" this year's crop must have been more deadly than ordinarily.

The Bucyrus Telegraph congratulates the Chautauqua guarantors up there over having purchased their tickets, pointing out that, before the Chautauqua is over, tickets may be selling at a premium. That's our idea of a copper-riveted illustration of A No. 1, blown-in-the-bottle optimism.

Some of the paragraphic fraternity look on the canceling of the dinner invitation to Lord Northcliffe as evidence of smallness on the part of somebody high in authority, but let that pass. It's the futility of the thing which strikes us. Canceling a dinner invitation may possibly have as much effect upon Lord Northcliffe as pouring water on a duck's tail.

OR ELSE--

THE BURDENS OF THE PAST.

The reported statement of Senator Penrose, chairman of the senate finance committee, to the effect that taxation reduction is hardly to be expected this year, has been hopped on by the partisan Democratic press as an instance of Republican repudiation of promises. But there is no warrant for such assertions. The Republican platform of 1920 addressed itself especially to the subject of taxation, and declared:

"The burden of taxation imposed upon the American people is staggering, but in presenting a true statement of the situation we must face the fact that while the character of the taxes can and should be changed, an early reduction of the amount of revenue to be raised is not to be expected. The next Republican administration will inherit from its Democratic predecessor a floating indebtedness of over $3,000,000,000, the prompt liquidation of which is demanded by sound financial considerations. Moreover, the whole fiscal policy of the government must be deeply influenced by the necessity of meeting obligations in excess of $5,000,000,000 which mature in 1923. But sound policy equally demands the early accomplishment of that real reduction of the tax burden which may be achieved by substituting simple for complex tax laws and procedure; prompt and certain determination of the tax liability for delay and uncertainty; tax laws which do not, for tax laws which do, excessively mulct the consumer or needlessly repress enterprise and thrift."

On that plank, by no means the least one in the platform, the Republicans based no small part of their hopes, and they were justified by the results. That the system of taxation will be changed is certain, but thanks to inherited obligations, the amount to be raised will for some time to come be little less than for the past two or three years under the Democratic mismanagement which has mortgaged the country.

Those who voted the Democratic ticket in 1916 because "he kept us out of war" are now discovering that he kept us in debt. The $300,000,000 indebtedness of the shipping board is a sorry example, and one of which the Republican party was but recently made cognizant. We will eventually get out of debt and reduce taxation under Republican rule, but four more years of Democratic misrule would have put the government into the hands of a receiver.

EVEN WIZARD EDISON SLEEPS.

The camera carries realism to its limits. It reveals relentlessly some things which the human object on which it is focused might prefer to leave unrevealed. The writer of fiction selects his material according to what purpose he has in mind, and he emphasizes the details which suit his purpose. The brush of the painter may often soften features that need softening, or it may slight altogether features that are not desirable in what the artist wishes to represent.

But the camera is inexorable. When Oliver Cromwell told his portrait painter: "Paint me as I am, warts and all," he anticipated the function and nature of the camera. There is no deception about this little instrument; it tells what it sees through its glass eye, and it tells nothing more or less. Therefore it is often a destroyer of ideals.

Take the case of Thomas A. Edison. No one knows exactly how the stories about this man's capacity for work originated, no one knows how much of this is fact and how much fiction. Who has not carried about with him from his childhood days a mental picture of Mr. Edison always at work, always devising, always inventing. From sun-up and before, to sun-down and after he is busily at work, winter and summer and seasons in between—thus we have pictured Mr. Edison. This restless Wizard of Menlo Park believes neither in food nor drink nor sleep—only in work. This is the Edison of our ideals.

Rude awakening follows then when the camera registers an ominous click and the developed negative reveals Mr. Edison asleep and in the daytime. The snapshot taken recently during his outing in Maryland shows him asleep in a forest, as peacefully as the "Babes in the Wood." No sign of restlessness here; he looks as if he enjoyed every sleeping second of it, as if he never wanted to do anything else in the world but take twenty naps and slumber the long night through. The camera has revealed something which but few mortal biographers have kept from us.

LIFE'S VAUDEVILLE.

[By Dr. James Ball Naylor.]

REVENGE.

"But if for wrongs we needs revenge must have,
Then be our vengeance of the noblest kind.
Do we his body from our fury save—
And let our hate prevail against his mind?
What can 'gainst him a greater vengeance be,
Than make his foe more worthy far than he?"

In 1814, when war was going on between England and America, the Americans built a small wooden schooner and launched it on Lake Champlain. They called it "The Revenge," but this little war vessel never wreaked any vengeance upon the British. For, at Plattsburg, the British quickly sent it to the bottom of the lake.

There the small schooner lay soaking in the ooze until quite recently. Not long ago, however, part of the hulk was recovered; and a number of newspaper men procured some of the sound timbers and had an "editorial chair" made from them, which they presented to President Harding.

England and America are seeking and striving to be real friends today. They have fought shoulder to shoulder in a great war, for national security and international rights; and, at the present time, are working hand in hand in an earnest effort to reconstruct the torn and troubled world. So bygones should be bygones. Nothing should be done to arouse the memories of ancient wrongs and disagreements.

Let ancient wrong be quite forgot,
And ancient hate and sham—
When Johnny Bull puts out his hand
And shakes with Uncle Sam!

So it might seem rather odd that the president of the United States should be expected to direct affairs of state from a chair the material of which came from an American war vessel sunk by British guns.

But President Harding, in his speech to the newspaper men who presented the chair to him, made plain that he took the wood of the Revenge as a symbol of the repudiation of revenge. He said that the repudiation of revenge had always been a principle with him: had always animated him in his dealings with men. He had never had any grudges to work out. So the occasion was turned into a delightful occasion of good-will and good-fellowship.

Says the Boston Transcript:

"We see, therefore, the little Champlain cruiser, Revenge, sunk by the guns of a once implacable enemy, turned by time and the grace of a good man into the symbol of forgiveness, and of a forgiveness which may reach further than the business of the Marion Star or than the personal fate and fortunes of that paper's illustrious editor. The kindly inversion betrays the disposition of the occupant of the chair and the White House: for it surely must take a man of universal benevolent disposition to convert the memento of hate and destruction into a token of love—to turn, as it were, the Hymn of Hate upside down and made a song of cheer of it."

For having been a faithful servant in the same family for a period of fifty-five years, Mme. Euphemia Bienseant has been awarded a silver medal by the French government.

The recent 1,000 mile Nevada desert automobile race was managed by a women, Mrs. Carmen Jewett Wilkie of Reno. Mrs. Wilkie is secretary of the Nevada Highway association.

Mrs. Lydia Adams, prominent writer and lecturer, formerly with the department of agriculture in Nevada, has announced her candidacy for the United States senate at the next Nevada election.

Miss Ruth Wheelock is visiting her home at Ft. Wayne, Indiana, after experiencing a year in the United States diplomatic service as an attache of the consular office at Palermo, Sicily.

Mrs. Martin Johnson, former San Francisco girl, daring explorer, and famous as the first woman in the world to penetrate the South seas, has sailed with her husband on a trip of exploration to the African interior.

A Detroit woman who applied to the court for an increase in her alimony on the ground that she was a really sick woman, was denied her request upon testimony that she was able to attend the races daily and yell loudly for her favorites as they came down the home stretch.

Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands is described by a recent writer as a large, heavily built woman, who is indifferent to the arts of her dressmakers and finds thorough pleasure in the personal charge of the affairs of her country. Her majesty is the richest sovereign in Europe in her own right, her income being enormous from her crown lands and from her vast colonies.

SEVENTY-FOUR FIELDS PASS SEED CERTIFICATION

Inspection in County Discloses Good Wheat Condition.

Of seventy-four fields of wheat in Marion county up for seed certification as to purity, twenty-six passed field inspection, the first step in this process

This was announced by W E Hanger, Columbus, extension specialist in farm crops, of the Ohio State university as part of the results of field inspection for the entire state Of 600 fields, applicants for certification in forty-three counties of Ohio, a bare 200 passed the field test, Professor Hanger announced

The number passing represented a sharp reduction under 1920, when two-thirds of fields entered got by the initial step in the certifying process

The condition of Portage has far from made state specialists lose faith in it, especially for the Ohio southeast, Professor Hanger says He believes the only way to eliminate the mixed feature is rigorously to exclude from certification all except absolutely pure Portage No more than 1,500 bushels of the variety, it is estimated, will be certified this year

About 20,000 bushels each of Gladden and Trumbull and 5,000 of Onio 127 will be found to have qualified for certification after samples of threshed grain have been examined, the crop workers believe It is hoped to complete this examination before the end of August.

OLD STIFF CUFFS THINGS OF THE PAST

It's Seldom One Sees Them Any More.

Do you remember when a man or boy wasn't supposed to be properly dressed for an evening party or for church on Sunday, if he wasn't wearing a pair of nice white stiff detachable cuffs protruding from his coat sleeves? Do you ever notice them being worn any more?

There was a time when you bought a shirt that if you didn't get with it two pairs of cuffs you thought you were being cheated now you do not think to look for the extra pair of cuffs, as all cuffs are attached to the shirts and are usually soft and flexible

No doubt tucked away in dresser drawers around the city the men have plenty of the old-fashioned stiff cuffs lying around, but it would be advisable to get rid of them, as there is no evidence of the stiff cuff ever coming back as an article of wearing apparel

SHIP, A-HOY! GENERAL MARION SAILS MERRILY

Another Wonderful Day in This Safe Old Harbor.

After that terrible July hot spell the director general of the elements so mixed 'em up that he flipped a coin—heads, regular August weather; tails, regular summer resort weather without the mosquitos and flies

And tails won; so dear readers of this old palladium, whose star of fidelity has burned for lo! these many years without even the faintest flicker, that's how it comes that Marion is now enjoying such glorious August weather

There's bad to be sure in the weatherman's melting pot, but earth planes dwellers are now getting the gold and none of the alloy.

Ship, a-hoy! Fair weather, fair merry weather! Hooray.

Women Men Admire.

Men admire a pretty face, a good figure but most of all the happy healthy, contented woman, as beauty fades and the figure will change Women who are troubled with backache, headaches, those dreadful dragging sensations and nervous irritability can not hope to be popular, and advancement in either home business or social life is impossible The cause of these troubles, however yields quickly to Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it is a natural restorative for such conditions and expels effectually all those distressing symptoms —Adv

PROMISING OUTLOOK FOR HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

With Opening Month Away, Pigskin Chatter Is Heard.

MENTOR BURDETTE TAKES COURSE AT CHAMPAIGN

He Thinks He Has the Making of a Pretty Fair Football Machine.

[BY FRANK D. WEEKS.]

With the opening of school only a month in the offing, possibilities and probabilities of a successful season in Harding High school football begin to make their appearance in the minds and fancies of local followers of the gridiron sport. It is natural in the making of observations to first consider the material left over from former aggregations around which the coming season's team will be built.

A nucleus of seven lettermen, who are expected to return this year, constitute a formidable backbone for what should be the best eleven ever turned out at the local high school. Heading the list of veterans is Captain-Elect Monnette, a hard hitting heavy and dependable tackle who will make an excellent field general and leader for his teammates.

The following are the six other men and their positions:

Six Other Men.

G. Hinklin, guard; Parcher, guard; Minard, end; Brashares, fullback; Burdette, quarter back; E. McCombs, tackle.

It is readily perceived that the majority of the old material is made up of linemen, but with the positions of quarter and full-back filled, it should not be a hard task for Coach Robert R. Burdette to pick out a pair of speedy halves, who will make the back field all that is to be desired.

Aside from the old material, which stands out as a living symbol foretelling success, an abundance of new material with high pigskin aspirations, which were given vent to in the spring practice, has appeared and promises to develop into an organization which will give seven more experienced men a fight for their positions.

At Spring Practice.

At the spring practice a list of candidates totalling over forty appeared for the gruelling work of learning fundamentals. This little escapade seems to aid greatly in the task of filling up the few open positions, and for giving plenty of competition for those who are contemplating landing permanent berths.

Coach Burdette, who recently returned to the city after having completed a course in coaching and various other phases of athletic work at the University of Illinois, is very optimistic concerning the season's prospects and it is believed that he will mold the abundance of both green and experienced material into one of the best football combinations that ever came out of the school.

BASEBALL

Tagging the Bases.

Barnes collapsed in the seventh and the Cards knocked the Giants for a haymow.

Washington made a clean sweep against Detroit, winning the game in the eighth on Milan's triple and Rice's single.

Bernie Neis' pinch single in the ninth scored Hood and Janvrin with the tying and winning runs for the Dodgers at Cincinnati.

The Browns won a double-header from Boston by timely hitting behind their pitchers. Van Gilder, Kolp and Bayne were used in the first game, but Dixie Davis went the full route in the second.

Rain forced all other teams to remain idle.

Downey and Wilson Must Fight.

New York, Aug. 3.—The state boxing commission refused to permit Bryan Downey and Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion, to box in this state unless they settle in another bout the controversy which arose as a result of their recent contest in Cleveland, when Wilson was awarded the referee's decision on a foul.

Another "Miracle Man"

The baseball season of 1921 has produced another "miracle man" in the person of George Gibson, manager of the league-leading Pittsburgh "Pirates." In the days when Mathewson was the premier pitcher in baseball, George was backstopping for the "Smoketown" tribe, and he was then rated as one of the leading mask wearers in the game. He is an astute leader and seems to have that quality of winning the confidence of subordinates, without which no commander can win success.
